

Oliver House School

Oliver House School in London wanted to make their school stand out, they wanted something unique to incorporate in to their school grounds which would bring joy to the children, hence their motto 'In gaudio serviamus' which translates to 'may we serve joyfully'.

The school made the choice to use Playrite's Matchwinner Velour surface as they were amazed at all the things they could incorporate in to their facility.

With guidance and help from Simon at ETC Sports and Playrite's Steve Byrnes, the school came up with the idea of adding their crest in to the surface showing their motto which gives a real personal touch for the school.

As well as the crest, the school added in a hopscotch and a letter snake which makes the area bright and bold and also gives a learning prospective whilst having fun! This produced a very attractive finish.
